The Path to Innovative Leadership

Business school is about teaching you fundamental business concepts and helping you further develop your general management skills. But the Berkeley MBA for Executives Program goes beyond that to offer you a special set of innovative leadership skills that are extremely valuable in the global marketplace—and tailored for executive MBA students.

Immediate Impact

Our executive MBA program focuses on applying knowledge and skills to challenges that managers face in today's workplace. As an accomplished professional seeking a highly relevant learning experience, you will find that your studies and classroom discussions have direct bearing on choices you are making for your organization.

Class exercises and team and special projects provide an unparalleled opportunity for you to apply learning to your organization's current business challenges. The EMBA program's structure—a foundation of rigorous general management skills in the early terms, followed by electives that deepen your knowledge in areas you deem most important to your professional growth—maximizes your ability to learn and apply new skills.

A General Management Education

Your Berkeley MBA education is taught from a general management perspective and anchored in the fundamentals of business—from accounting and finance to marketing and strategy. You learn to lead and manage an enterprise as a whole.

A Rigorous Curriculum

The Berkeley MBA curriculum provides you with a basic framework of qualitative, quantitative, analytical, strategic, and problem-solving skills. It's rooted in the scientific disciplines of the university—economics, mathematics, social sciences such as psychology and sociology, and other areas.

Faculty Experts

Faculty members in the EMBA program are experts in their fields. They apply their expertise toward increasing your knowledge of successful management, leadership, human behavior, organizational performance, and economic and market functions.

A Deeper Understanding

You not only gain knowledge about best business practices, but also learn about the fundamental principles behind them—the "how" and the "why." The Berkeley MBA for Executives Program will make you think deeply and expand your understanding of the world.

Tools for Innovative Thinking

In her popular Problem Finding, Problem Solving course, Senior Lecturer Sara Beckman (above) teaches you several modes of thinking—such as problem framing—in order to find and solve difficult problems. Throughout the curriculum, courses like this give you the tools and capabilities necessary to become the type of leader who defines what's next—for our markets and for our societies.
