

The faculty of the Haas Undergraduate Program Committee have updated their recent decision to allow one upper division business course (core or elective), core substitute or Haas prerequisite (this applies to GMP and MET students) per semester to be taken P/NP, as long as we are in remote instruction. When the grading option system reopens, students will be able to make a selection up until Thursday, December 3rd at 11:59pm. The Haas grading policy is still suspended so there is no maximum mean GPA required for courses.

The decision of the Haas Undergraduate Program Committee is largely based on the fact that we are a predominantly two year program with only 38 upper division business units as part of our degree requirements (the 12 upper division non-business units can be taken as P/NP). As we think long term about instituting a grading exception, we must also consider the academic implications and potential negative impact on students for career and graduate school opportunities. A large concern is that it is conceivable a student would earn a bachelor of science degree without earning letter grades if we were to enact the all P/NP policy.

We believe this approach best balances our concern for your mental and emotional health at this extraordinarily stressful time with our equal concern for academic excellence and the long-term value of your Haas degree. The grading option will be in place for as long as we are in remote instruction.
